Tickets are available for $6.50 for adults and $4.50 for children under 12 years of age.

The office is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Labor leaders see choices dwindle

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

The shrinking number of presidential candidates is making the decision in next Tuesday's state primary a tough one for local organized labor.

The withdrawal on Monday of Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and last week's withdrawal of Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebraska, have sharply reduced the list of active candidates with strong labor backgrounds and support, union officials said.

A majority of workers represented by International Chemical Workers Local 50 had been supporting Kerrey, President Jerry Siner said.

"The choices are definitely dwindling, and we haven't had a chance to talk among ourselves on who the new choice might be," Siner said. "We do know that we have to have a Democratic president."

The choices are definitely dwindling, and we haven't had a chance to talk among ourselves on who the new choice might be. We do know that we have to have a Democratic president.

— Jerry Siner

An effort will be made to reach agreement on a candidate prior to the March 17 primary balloting, Siner said.

Harkin appeared to have most of the local labor support, Laborers International Union Local 397 officials Jim Schmiedke said.

"Harkin advocated the New Deal style of thinking in favor of work programs to rebuild the infrastructure and get people to work," Schmiedke said. "His father was a mine worker, and he had excellent working ties. He was one of us."

The national AFL-CIO (American Federation of Labor/Council of Industrial Organizations) has not narrowed its support to a single candidate, Illinois

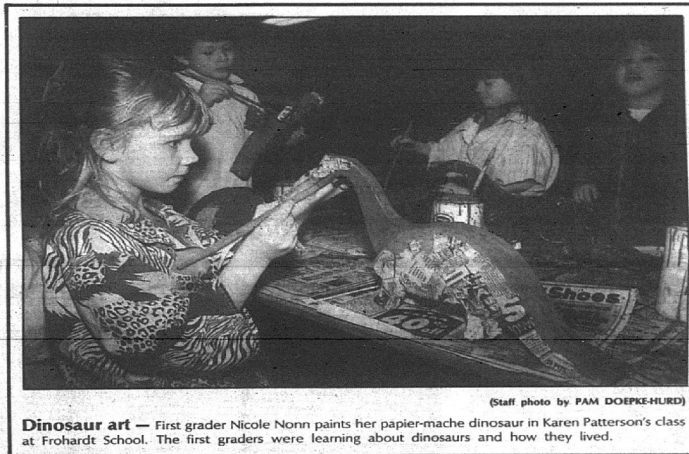

AFL-CIO subdistrict director Paul Aldridge said.

The Steelworkers and Auto Workers had supported Harkin, but the AFL-CIO has not endorsed a candidate because there hasn't been a majority that has supported one candidate," Aldridge said. "AFL-CIO support would take a two-thirds majority and that hasn't happened."

The national AFL-CIO most likely will wait for "the smoke to clear" before taking a stand, Schmiedke said.

The Teamsters union has not yet committed itself to a candidate, said an official of Teamsters and Chauffeurs Local 525. The national organization is expected to poll the membership before endorsing a candidate.

Labor will support the Democratic presidential nominee in 1992, Aldridge said. (See LABOR, Page 7A)

Man is charged in wife's stabbing

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

A 27-year-old Granite City man could face six to 30 years in prison if convicted of the stabbing of his estranged wife on Sunday, authorities said.

Lyndon C. Smith, of the 2000 block of Missouri Avenue, was charged Monday with armed violence. He was being held at the Granite City Police Station Tuesday under $150,000 bond.

Police said Smith apparently stabbed his estranged wife, Veronica S. Smith, 29, six times in the chest after the two argued at the home of Veronica Smith's sister.

After the stabbing, Lyndon Smith allegedly took his wife to his home and waited more than 30 minutes before taking her to the hospital.

Police were called to St. Elizabeth Medical Center about 4 a.m. Sunday. Police reports said Veronica Smith had been stabbed with a knife six times in the chest, abdomen and thigh area.

She remained hospitalized Tuesday morning. Hospital officials said her condition was not being released at her request.

Veronica Smith told police that Lyndon Smith had entered her sister's home in the 2200 block of Grand Avenue at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday. Veronica Smith said she had been staying with her sister for 10 days due to marital problems.

Veronica Smith said she was sleeping on a couch when Lyndon Smith awakened her.

The two are said to have argued for nearly an hour. She said he became enraged and told her, "If I can't have you, nobody will." He then allegedly began stabbing her.

He began to cry after the stabbing, at which time she begged him to call an ambulance, Veronica Smith told police. (See STABBING, Page 7A)

Food For Less plans to move into Madison

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

Madison will once again be the home of a large food store in the next few months, city officials say.

Food For Less will move into the 18,000-square-foot vacant facility at 12th Street and Madison Avenue in May or early June. The building has been vacant since Schermer's Market closed on Aug. 3.

The new discount food store will be operated by St. Louis natives Dave and Joseph O'Neil. The brothers currently operate five discount stores in the metropolitan St. Louis area.

"I've known Dave Schermer for some time and we've kept in contact," Dave O'Neil said.

"When he decided to close his store, I saw it as a good opportunity. This area needs a store of this type."

The Madison store will be the first Illinois store operated by the O'Neil brothers. The five Missouri stores are located in South St. Louis, High Ridge, Berkeley, St. Charles and Jennings. The Berkeley and Jennings stores are Save-A-Lot stores.

Dave O'Neil hosted a trip for Madison City Council members Tuesday night prior to the council meeting. About 12 city officials and businessmen visited the Jennings Food For Less store in the River Roads Mall, 14220 Old Halls Ferry Road.

"It's going to be a beautiful store in Madison," Mayor John Bellicoff said. "I hear it everyday — the need for a market in Madison. People here want to shop locally."

The store visited is well stocked with products that are reasonably priced, Bellicoff said.

The Madison store will be a full-line store with all the major labels and some private labels, much like the conventional chain stores, O'Neil said.

"The difference will be the discount prices," he said.

Trip boosts spirits of ailing seven-year-old

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

A charitable organization helped Bryanna Warren keep a promise to his daughter. Now Warren wants to make sure that others are aware of the work the organization does.

The "Make A Wish Foundation" helped Warren provide a trip to Disney World in Orlando, Fla., last year for his seven-year-old daughter, Bryanna, who suffers from a deadly kidney ailment.

Warren had promised the girl, his only child, the trip years ago, he said.

"She had always wanted to go, so I promised to take her there," Warren said.

But the girl's illness meant that Warren had a deadline to fight, he said.

"Her liver is deteriorating away and is unable to break things down properly," Warren said. "Doctors continually give her vitamin supplements, but she will most likely need a liver transplant in the future," Warren said. "She was not supposed to live past five."

Warren had figured he would take care of the dream himself, but did not expect to lose his job at Granite City Steel in February of 1991.

The two had planned on going last August, but the loss of his job jeopardized the trip.

"I would have still taken out a loan or something," Warren said. "But a friend told me of the 'Make A Wish Foundation.'"

The foundation learned that Bryanna was not expected to live beyond eighteen. Anyone with a life-threatening illness who is between 3 and 18-years of age is eligible for a wish, foundation officials said.

The organization pays air fare, meals and motor transportation for the immediate family of a terminally ill child. It pays $2,500 for an average wish.

The all-volunteer group has granted 40 wishes in 4 years.

foundation officials said.

"They saved me approximately $2,000," Warren said.

The two were transported from Warren's home in Granite City to Lambert International Airport in St. Louis by limousine. They flew to Orlando to stay at "Kids Cottage," a facility outside Disney World housing 32 families for special wish children, Warren said.

Musicians get ready for first Gospelfest

Nine soloists and 17 musical groups have been selected to perform at the first McDonald's Gospelfest, to be performed at the Fox Theater March 29.

More than 600 individuals and groups auditioned for the first-of-a-kind event in the St. Louis area. Auditions were extended to two weeks in order to make sure all entrants had a chance to compete for show spots.

The Suburban Journals are a co-sponsor of this unique event.

Mike Gladbach, chairman of the McDonald's public relations committee, said, "Interest in our first Gospelfest was simply overwhelming. The judges had a monumental job of choosing from a host of outstanding soloists and groups."

Tickets for the Fox performance are available at the Fox Theatre ticket office and at Metroplex locations. Also a $2-off coupon is available at all National Food stores, another co-sponsor along with KIRL, WCBW and KSVI radio.

Jacinta Gauda, a spokeswoman for the Gospelfest, said the auditions at Northwest Plaza provided an unusual opportunity for church groups who don't usually interact to network. "The auditions were a celebration in themselves," she said.

The complete listing of soloists and groups to appear in the McDonald's Gospelfest at the Fox is:

Kevin
HorriganHyland's force created
KMOX 'Mother Radio'

Long before I began picking up a paycheck at KMOX Radio, I used to wonder what came first, the chicken or the egg. Did KMOX mirror St. Louis' values, or had the city's psyche somehow been tuned to 1120 kilocycles?

"Mother Radio," I called it then. I'd tell friends who worked there that they ought to change the call letters. It should be KMOX, I said, Mother Radio, the station that takes over where Mom leaves off.

Pick up your clothes, brush your teeth, study hard, don't take drugs, pay attention in civics class, eat your vegetables, watch your blood pressure, wear your boots because it's going to snow, go to church, go to the Zoo, go to the Muny, don't play in the traffic unless Don Miller says it's OK, root for the Cardinals, pay attention. Did you hear me? Pay attention!

God is the great practical joker, and so it was that nearly two years ago, I took my hat in my hand and asked the man who created KMOX—the man whose values KMOX reflected—for a job. For reasons known only to him, Robert F. Hyland Jr. decided to give me access to his 50,000 watts five mornings a week.

Many people, both inside and outside of KMOX, thought he'd taken leave of his senses. But the only thing he asked was that I not go out of my way to antagonize his advertisers. Because I firmly believe in the axiom, "Whose bread I eat, his song I sing," I did what he asked. Well, most of the time, anyway.

Robert Hyland, as most everyone in St. Louis knows by now, died last Thursday night. Those of us at KMOX had known for months that he had cancer of the liver, and that he had it bad, and that cancer of the liver is almost always fatal. Still, in the backs of all our minds was the thought that the Boss would beat it.

I did not know him well; few people did. But for sheer force of will, I have never seen his equal.

He made KMOX into the most listened-to radio station in the country. KMOX reflected his tastes, from the Richard Evans sermonettes in the morning to the sports programming at night to the elevator music between 3 and 5 a.m.

He liked baseball, so KMOX seized baseball, a symbiotic relationship that benefited the team as well as the station. He was deeply interested in politics and public affairs, so the station grabbed that franchise, too. He set the agenda.

He fiddled and tuned the station until it broadcast what he liked to hear and what he sensed St. Louis wanted to hear. No matter what time of day or night it was, when the "hot line" light went on inside Studio B, you knew the Boss was listening and he was unhappy.

Amazingly, it usually wound up that St. Louis heard what he wanted to hear. And the numbers proved him right.

You always figured he was listening. You might see him only once or twice a week, in brief meetings, passing him in the hall, bumping into him in a studio where he was taping an editorial—oh, those editorials. But you knew he was around, listening, fiddling, fine-tuning. You'd pick up the phone, hear a voice say simply, "See me right away." You didn't have to ask, "Who's this?"

He was a salesman, selling his values, tastes and beliefs. His workday began at 11:30 at night, when most people were just going to bed. When he finished selling KMOX, he'd start selling St. Louis, fiddling and fine-tuning and trying to orchestrate the city as well.

He belonged to nearly every board in town. He had packages and crates and boxes of plaques and trophies, man of the year awards, Marconi awards, Peabody Awards. His name is on one of the top drug-and-alcohol rehab centers in America. He helped turn the embarrassment that was City Hospital into the asset that is St. Louis Regional Medical Center.

Yes, there were stories about his style and his methods and his habits. He preferred to operate behind the scenes, to keep his secrets, to cut his deals. He never told anyone more than he had to. He was the master of the two-minute meeting and the one-minute phone call, the one-sentence memo with "RH" scrawled in black felt-tip marker at the bottom.

He didn't like to be challenged, but he would listen. He liked to operate on the personal-favor level, and he did a million of them. He did a couple for me. One I try to repay every day. The other I could never repay and will never forget.

I mention this because somehow I figure he's still listening.

(Kevin Horrigan is co-host of "The Morning Meeting" on KMOX Radio from 6:30 to 11:00 a.m. Monday through Friday.)

Brown, who was standing in the street, had suffered a six-inch laceration on the left arm, allegedly at Weathers' home. Both rear tires of Brown's vehicle had been slashed. Neither man would sign a complaint, but police filed conduct charges because residents of the area had been disturbed by the dispute. Each man was booked and released on cash bail.

County offices begin move

Computer department is first in new building

Madison County government is on the move.

The county's data processing department began moving into the county's new $17 million administration building at 5 p.m. Friday.

Other offices and departments will follow in weeks to come, with full occupancy scheduled about May 1. The building is across the street from the Madison County Courthouse.

The data processing department will be on the new building's ground floor. Work continues on other parts of the building.

Non-court offices currently located in the courthouse and offices in other county-owned buildings will move to the new structure, leaving only courts and court-related offices in the courthouse.

The data processing department moved from a building a block away on Hillsboro Avenue. Its move was scheduled first because of the complexity of wiring connections. Pat Morrison, data processing director, said.

"We figure we'll be back up and the only way the other offices will know anything happened is that they'll be picking up work at another location," he said.

IBM Corp. was hired for its expertise to coordinate the move.

"I couldn't have drawn up the specifications," Morrison said. "We had to rely on them to do that."

Morrison said his 18-member staff and equipment were jammed into the department's old quarters. "We're elbow to elbow and we have equipment stacked on top of equipment," he said. "I couldn't get anything else in here."

With the move, the space problem has been solved.

Helmet debate on collision course

Opponents are gearing up to butt heads again this year over mandatory helmets for motorcyclists.

The issue is hotter than ever because Illinois would have to divert federal highway construction money without a helmet law, which is highly unpopular with some segments of the motorcyclist community.

State Rep. Howard Brookins, D-Chicago, has proposed a bill requiring helmets and said this could be the year it passes.

"I think it has a very good chance this session, mainly because of what has happened with the federal law," Brookins said.

A federal law shifts 1.5 percent of federal road money to driver safety programs in states not requiring helmets by Oct. 1, 1993. Three percent of road money will be shifted in states without a helmet law by Oct. 1, 1994.

Figures prepared by Illinois Senate staff indicate Illinois could lose $5.9 million in 1994 and $10.1 million in 1995.

Sen. John Cullerton of Chicago has proposed a similar bill the last several years, but motorcyclist lobbyists have successfully derailed the bills, Brookins said.

Illinois, Iowa and Colorado are the only states left where motorcyclists of any age can ride without a helmet. Twenty-three states require helmets for all ages and 24 have a modified helmet law.

Even with the prospect of losing transportation money, legislators can expect heat from motorcyclists who want to make up their own minds about helmets.

"We don't believe the state should be in the business of regulating the use of helmets," said Todd Vandermyle, Illinois legislative director of the anti-helmet group, American Bikers Almed Toward Education. "The people who operate motorcycles are in the best position" to decide for themselves.

"These social do-gooders don't know the facts," Vandermyle said. "Stuffing a helmet on someone's head is not going to make someone drive responsibly."

Correction

In a caption for a photograph in the March 8 Granite City Journal, the price of Warriors mugs at McDonald's restaurants was incorrectly stated.

The actual cost of the unfilled mug is $1.50 with 25 cents of the price going to the Granite City High School athletic program. To fill the mug with soda, or to have it refilled, the cost is 49 cents.

TRY THE CLASSIFIEDS!

ABATE's position is that education is the primary answer to preventing accidents and injuries, Vandermyle said. A large majority of motorcycle accidents involve untrained riders, he said.

Vandermyle said the state could lose more tax money by requiring helmets, because studies have shown fewer people buy and ride motorcycles in states with helmet laws.

Mary Huck, public information officer for the Illinois Department of Public Health, said the likelihood of serious head injury in an accident increases 30 percent to 50 percent for motorcyclists who are not wearing helmets.

Also, motorcyclists are more likely to be killed in accidents than people driving other vehicles, Huck said. Motorcycles represent 2.5 percent of registered vehicles in Illinois but are involved in 6.5 percent of the fatalities.

In 1990, 150 motorcyclists died in Illinois accidents and 3,575 were injured, Huck said.

Students to give anti-drug messages this summer

By Jim Rygelski
Staff writer

Local high school students on both sides of the Mississippi River are planning stylized anti-drug messages for their peers this summer after attending a workshop last week in midtown St. Louis.

About 120 students from 15 schools throughout the St. Louis area developed their individualized anti-drug campaigns Thursday during a session at the Doisy Learning Center in the St. Louis University Medical Center complex.

"The purpose is to get youth involved in prevention, to have youth deliver a message to the country to reduce drug and alcohol abuse," said Denise DeCou, one of the program's coordinators.

The training session was part of the "It's Our Life, Why Not Get Involved" program sponsored by KidsPlace: St.

Louis, a division of the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council. The program, its organizers said, is backed by a three-year federal grant. University City High School senior Lamar Haynes said he'd be able to use what he learned in the workshop for programs at his school.

"We have a SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) chapter; we need more," he said.

Students attending the session met with public relations professionals to organize their approaches for telling their peers to avoid drugs. At the conclusion of the morning's activities, the schools' representatives gave brief reports on what they hope to do.

Some, such as Lansdowne Middle School in Illinois' St. Clair County, will utilize the electronic media; others, such as the plan proposed by Webster Middle School in north St. Louis, will use posters put up inside the school and at gatherings of the school's students.

Each had its own theme and a target audience.

"Kids have enough info; they just have to apply it," said Brandon Meyer, a representative from Collinsville High School in Illinois. Its theme is "Where are you heading?"

Lansdowne's targeted audience is anyone age 6 to 50, said student Frederick Evans, who added, "We can enjoy our life." Students from Cedar Hill Junior High School in Jefferson County say they'll prepare a calendar of summer events for students there.

Other schools represented Thursday included the Center for Law, Management and Public Policy, and Roosevelt High School, from the St. Louis Public Schools; Hazelwood West High School, Lindbergh High School, St. Thomas Aquinas-Mercy High School, from north county; North Jefferson Middle School from Jefferson County; Cahokia High School from St. Clair County and Waterloo High School from Monroe County.

Health care at home

Nursing staff visits show gigantic increase

With patients' conditions requiring more frequent visits and physicians becoming more involved with the home care aspect, the Home Health Department at St. Elizabeth Medical Center has continued to grow.

In 1988 there were 9,700 visits from nurses and aides from Home Health. In 1989, that number grew to 14,300, and in 1990, visits jumped to 28,000. But in 1991, Home Health saw its greatest growth with 42,000, said Carla Burian, director of Home Health Department.

"In general, Home Health growth is due to more hospitals and physicians recognizing what we can and cannot do," Burian said. "It has been a learning process, and we are finding out we can take care of a lot of things."

Burian said physician support from the medical center in the last two years has been tremendous.

"The physicians on staff are very supportive of what we do," she said. "There is a strong willingness to work with us and let us go in and do our jobs. They are accessible to us when we need to discuss a patient's problem, which is very important. They recognize the need for care in the home beyond discharge from the hospital."

Home Health provides a visiting staff to patients' homes to continue care after discharge from the hospital.

"It is a less acute form of care. We don't have a lot of gadgets, monitors and diagnostic types of things," she said. "We assess the patient's medical condition and treatment needed for the condition. We change catheters, dressings, administer medications, and educate the patient about their diet requirements. These are all skilled services provided by our nurses and therapists."

At Home Care, a division of Home Health, also provides other services to the patients.

"Whether a patient needs housekeeping or someone to stay with them while a family member or caregiver goes out for groceries, At-Home provides this service," she said. "We visit some patients on a daily basis to help them with personal aspects of life."

Because patients are in hospitals for shorter periods of time, there is a greater need for care in the home. As more and more surgeries and treatments are done on an outpatient basis, Burian said this need should continue to grow.

The department currently has 30 nurses and 360 patients. The average number of patients per month in 1988 was 151. In 1989, the average was 201, and in 1990 the average was 291.

"When our staff examined these increases, we saw the number of visits per patient went up dramatically," she said. "Because patients are more unstable, there is a higher intensity of service. Patients require multiple services. Five years ago, a patient would only need one nurse. Today, they require more types of services."

An example is a person who may have been a borderline diabetic for years, but whose condition now requires they begin insulin. Three years ago, a physician would have put the patient in the hospital to begin insulin treatments, but now treatment can begin in the home.

"This may require three or four visits a day in the beginning to regulate the sugar level," she said. "But this is better for the patient emotionally and financially. It costs less for care in the home than being admitted to the hospital."

McKendree squabbling continues

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

McKendree College faculty members say they are disappointed that President Gerrit TenBrink did not first consult them before appointing three faculty members to a new fine arts committee.

In a press release issued Wednesday by the college's chapter of the American Association of University Professors, members said they saw the appointments "as a further act of divisiveness and in contradiction to the spirit of open communication and reconciliation."

"What we are trying to get across is that it is a disappointment that what we hoped was a reconciliation between the administration and the campus turned out not to be," said Michael Stacey-Doyle, vice president of the local AAUP.

In an effort to settle campus disputes, the college board of trustees voted in February to have TenBrink appoint a Fine Arts Series Committee to oversee artistic productions at the school. The committee was to be made up of the college's dean, public relations director, dean of students, three faculty members from various departments and one student.

Disagreements between the faculty and administration began in September when TenBrink wrote a directive banning the play "Acts of Passion" from appearing at the college because he said it violated the college mission.

Stacey-Doyle said the faculty members do not necessarily have a problem with the faculty members that TenBrink appointed but they are disappointed that he did not consult with them before he made a final decision.

"They will be representing the faculty but the faculty did not have any input into the decision," he said.

In February TenBrink appointed music director Nancy Ympa, education instructor Martha Eggers and psychology instructor Frank Eysenman as faculty members of the committee with the board-appointed Reconciliation Committee at 7:30 p.m. Monday to further discuss the issues.

TenBrink could not be reached for comment.

"The University will not be responding to criticism from the faculty," said McKendree Public Relations Director Doug Denison. Faculty members are also upset that TenBrink appointed an Academic Dean without first consulting the faculty or the campus community.

The press release stated "According to standard practice in higher education, appointment to such an important academic position should only follow an extensive national search and consultation with all members of the academic community."

TenBrink was invited by the Faculty Affairs Council to discuss the issues at a meeting on Wednesday but he declined the meeting.

Because faculty members are not satisfied with the progress of the reconciliation between the administration and campus, faculty members will be meeting with the board-appointed Reconciliation Committee at 7:30 p.m. Monday to further discuss the issues.

"We went into this reconciliation process with a cautious optimism," Stacey-Doyle said. "But now I don't know what to think."

Netsch report features architecture in state

SPRINGFIELD — Flipping through the first several pages, you might think you were looking at the latest issue of Architectural Digest. But, no, it's the new annual report of the Illinois state comptroller's office.

Not so coincidentally, Comptroller David Clark Netsch, married to a noted Chicago architect, Walter Netsch.

However, the comptroller's speech has no hand in the text or design of the eight-page opening section on architecture, said Netsch's press secretary Rick Dan. A graphic artist for the office did the work, he said.

It includes such thoughts as: "Nowhere in history has the superior balance of aesthetics been more preserved than in architecture. Magnificent structures have given immortality to man's values." There is an essay on "Chicago: Birthplace of Modern Architecture" and another on Frank Lloyd Wright's Prairie School, handsomely illustrated with black and white and color photos of noted buildings in Illinois.

There is even a photo of Comptroller Netsch standing in Wright's Dana-Thomas House in Springfield rather than in her statehouse office.

Among the other buildings featured is Buck Hall on the Principia College campus in Elsah, designed by Bernard Maybeck (1862-1957). The caption with the photo says: "The English village style campus, set in a wooded area overlooking the Illinois River, provided an environment which is meant to mold the ideas and characters of its students."

The annual report contains no photos of the State of Illi-

Center in downtown Chicago,

Sutureless (No Stitch) Cataract Surgery

Until now, all cataract surgery required a large incision into the eye to remove the cataract and implant a lens. Eight or more stitches were required to close the wound.

Recently, however, a new soft implant has been developed that can fit through a 4mm (about 1/8 inch) incision.

A new surgical technique now allows this surgery to be done without sutures. The result is a rapid recovery of vision and an immediate return to normal activities.

St. Elizabeth is selected for indicator field testing

St. Elizabeth Medical Center has been selected to participate in the field testing of indicators, or "performance measures," for the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO).

This "beta phase" testing is the first large-scale evaluation of the JCAHO's trauma care, oncology care, cardiovascular care, medication use and infection control indicators. The indicators are designed to help hospitals assess and improve the quality of patient care they provide.

SEMC will participate in the testing of trauma, oncology and cardiovascular indicators. Testing will start this year and last for approximately two years.

The test will include an evaluation of hospitals' ability to use computer systems to collect indicator data and to transmit the data electronically to the Joint Commission. The JCAHO's information system will be evaluated on its ability to receive and analyze the data and provide timely feedback to hospitals. A second section will involve evaluation of the reliability and validity of the indicators to assess their potential usefulness to hospitals and to the JCAHO as both seek to identify ways to improve the quality of patient care.

The indicator development project is part of the JCAHO's Agenda for Change, a set of developmental initiatives launched in 1986 to create a more modern accreditation process. The new accreditation process contemplates the use of both clinical and organizational performance data as measures of an organization's ability to deliver quality care.

SEMC joins other test sites selected from hospitals throughout the nation.

"The participation of these hospitals in the testing process is essential to the eventual implementation of an indicator monitoring system for all accredited hospitals," said Dennis S. O'Leary, MD, president of the JCAHO.

Candidates get second chance at U.S. judge post

SPRINGFIELD — Three applicants who were benched last fall in their first attempt for a U.S. district judgeship will get a second chance at the post.

The three nominees have been recommended by U.S. Rep. Robert Michel, D-Peoria, to fill a vacancy that will be created by the decision of U.S. District Judge James Foreman to take "senior status" on June 1.

On the list are Southern District U.S. Attorney Frederick Hess of Belleville, state Circuit Judge Philip Gilbert of Carbondale and former Williamson County State's Attorney Randy Patchett of Marion.

They were left out last fall when the U.S. Justice Department tentatively chose Godfrey attorney J. Thomas Long for a newly created federal judgeship in the Southern District.

A final decision on Long is expected after completion of routine federal investigation.

Michel had recommended all four for the new seat and decided to submit the three who were not selected last year, for the Foreman vacancy. Michel aide Ray LaHood said Monday.

LaHood said Michel has not expressed a preference among the three "at this time." They were among a group of 11 applicants who had been screened by an Illinois State Bar Association Committee and interviewed by Michel last year.

The ultimate nominee is up to President Bush and requires confirmation of the U.S. Senate.

LaHood said it is his understanding a background investigation is completed for all federal judge candidates before they are nominated by the president.

He said U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Illinois, who is on the Senate Judiciary Committee, has agreed to seek a "fast track" confirmation process for the Southern District nominees, once the president has acted.

The Southern District covers about one-third of the state including Madison and Calhoun counties.

Foreman, who will be 65 in May, has been a federal judge since 1972. Such judges must have at least 15 years of service and be at least age 65 in order to take senior status. The status allows judges to hear fewer cases but keep their full pay.

Foreman said he does not anticipate any reduced workload until a new judge is seated.

"I do expect after we get the full complement on the bench to work less. You can do some degree pick and choose cases," he said.

utmost respect," Warren said. "She was on top of the world."

Characters from Walt Disney World came to the cottage for breakfast and catered to the children.

"The children were tagged with 'Give Kids the World' stickers, which meant we didn't have to wait in line for any of the rides," Warren said. "We went to a country and western show and were allowed to go on stage with the performers. We were allowed to go backstage for all the shows. It was almost as if the whole complex was operating for us."

"She was overly excited after the trip," Karen Willis, a volunteer of the Make A Wish Foundation, said. "She really had a wonderful time."

The trip brought her spirits up, Warren said.

"She still talks about it and still wants to drink everything out of her Walt Disney World mug," Warren said. "I'm definitely gonna take her back sometime if I can because she enjoyed it so much."

Bryanna was born in Granite City, but now lives with her mother in Nashville, Ill., where she is in the first grade.

Warren said he wanted to let others know of the foundation's good work.

"I just wanted to give them some publicity and let others know that they helped us a lot," Warren said.

groceries and take the products out of their original boxes, like other discount stores, O'Neil said.

"The chain stores offer more service to their customers, like bagging, but we feel that people choose a market for its low prices and we offer them low prices."

Although some of the services are minimal, customers of Food For Less will be able to order special-cut meats, a service that is important to customers, O'Neil said.

"It's a great thing to have them move into Madison," Bellcoff said. "I think the residents will be impressed with the store's quality."

O'Neil has estimated the store will be a $4 million a year operation.

"I wish the 18,000-square-foot building were a little bigger, but we'll make it successful first and then maybe we'll add onto it," O'Neil said.

The store will create 10 full-time and 20 part-time jobs in the area, O'Neil said.

Tentative operating hours are 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day, he said.

Memories of Red Grange's feats outlive U of I's football stadium

By Al Barnes
Correspondent

Several weeks ago I was reading the sports section when a small item caught my eye and instantly raised my interest. It was dateline Champaign, Ill.

The headline read: "U of I Stadium Gets Face Lift." I'm now 80 years old, but at age 13 I was on hand to see the immortal Harold "Red" Grange help his University of Illinois teammates completely demolish the odds-on favorites from Michigan 39-14 on Oct. 17, 1924.

That was the dedication game for Memorial Stadium, built out amid the farmland and cemeteries of south Champaign. The first game had actually been played there a year earlier. Now the school is spending $18 million to replace the upper deck. The whole stadium only cost $1.7 million to build.

But back to Grange. The stands were jam-packed and the crowd included me and my boy scout group from the Illinois Odd Fellows Orphans Home of Lincoln. It was one of the greatest — if not the greatest — individual athletic performances of all time.

Grange took the opening kickoff and returned the ball 95 yards for the first touchdown after only 15 seconds. The Galloping Ghost, as Grange was called in addition to the Wheaton Iceman, scored on touchdown runs of 67, 56 and 44 yards the next three times the Illini got the ball.

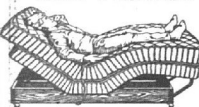

As a 13-year-old who had never seen a college football game, I was a little in the dark as to what was going. What was going on was Grange on the way to a 402-yard performance. He scored only one touchdown in the second half, but he passed for another.

It wasn't until 1934 that I saw another game at Memorial Stadium. The Illini played Army with the great Red Cagle and sprang another sensational upset. It was a big thrill for my buddies and I who had driven up from Cairo. But it didn't match my down feelings when we were drenched by a downspout that had broken on the stadium's west side after the game. And the beautiful stadium was only 10 years old!

I guess it's about time they renovate that stadium.

Game

Edwardsville), I don't think anyone who comes in here can beat us."

"It definitely makes a difference being there," said Warrior center Jeff Smith. "They will think we're big underdogs, but it won't be that big of a deal."

Including the Christmas tournament, this will be the Warriors' sixth game this year at Fletcher Gym.

"It's not like this is their first time in here," said Bone. "So the home-court advantage isn't that big of a deal. (But) I know our kids like to play here. That's a big plus."

Barnidge

"I went down to the barber shop today and the barber was talking about it," he said.

Fletcher's barber isn't the only one. They're talking around Riverview Gardens in north St. Louis County, around East St. Louis and Granite City on the east side, around John Burroughs and Parkway Central, and St. Joe's Academy in west St. Louis County.

And there's more to it than talk. There is an edge. The beauty of the tournament is not just that anybody can win. But everybody can — and most will — lose.

"They know if they lose tonight, they're done," says Rhodes.

And it happens to all of them. Favorites stumble, dark horses fly.

"It'll happen this year," Irons predicts. "It'll happen to somebody."

But when it doesn't happen, when your team doesn't lose, there's magic.

In 1940, Pat Harmon wrote in the Press-Record about the Andy Phillip-led Warrior state championship: "There is joy tonight in the Vartan Market and the beauty parlor of Edinoff. Joy down where Kirchhoff's Grocery lies hard by Mitchell's Market, with Stoyunoff's Dry Goods not far away. For Granite City won..."

Wonderful then. Wonderful now.

As Irons said: "It'll happen this year. It'll happen to some body."

(Dennis Barnidge is the sports editor of the Jefferson County Journals.)

said. "(The Smiths) have played well against us in the past. We've got to keep them from getting easy shots — layups and second shots. I don't think we played hard enough last time. We weren't mentally ready."

Joining Keene in the starting lineup are Chris Reynolds (16.7 points per game), Tim Reynolds (11.5), Van Dyke (8.4) and Kory Crumer (4.0). Crumer, however, sprained an ankle Friday against Edwardsville and may not play. If he can't go, senior Kevin Kriemeyer or junior Joe Muniz will get the start.

'Dr. Mom' rejects idea of 'superparent'

By Jane Cosby
Correspondent

At first glance, it seems like a classic case of "Do what I say, not what I do." Marianne Neifert — pediatrician, author, national lecturer and mother of five — advises parents not to emulate the "superparent" myth.

But after further examination, Dr. Mom, as she is known in her column for McCall's magazine, reveals a life of setting priorities and making hard choices.

"We have unique parenting challenges today," Neifert said in a recent interview from her office in Colorado. "Parents today have overwhelming choices. There are so many activities for children. Families have less time together."

"Many mothers are trying to fit their lifestyle into their mother's outmoded model of home-making," she said.

Neifert wants parents to reject the superparent model and be more realistic.

"Lower your expectations and standards," she said.

That's how Neifert handled being a mother of a young child and also having a career, she said.

"I had to let go of a lot of things," she said.

Entertaining in her home, preparing home-cooked meals, gardening and having a spotless house are some of the things Neifert said she banished from her life.

"Each family needs to identify their governing values and put all the others behind them," Neifert said. "Rank your priorities and attend to the important ones."

But Neifert offers one item that should be a top priority on every parent's list.

"Make your child's self-esteem a high priority in your life," she said. "You can't change this after the fact. Fostering a child's sense of self-worth must come first."

"The greatest mistake parents are making today is a failure to convey to their child how much they love him," she said. "Children need basic unconditional love. Let your child know that there is nothing he could do to make you stop loving him."

Parents should also spend some time on themselves, Neifert said.

"Nurture your adult relationships," she said. "Give your child a gift — a good relationship between his parents."

Neifert advises parents to be creative about where their family is going. Right after her last child was born, Neifert said she realized her family was out of steam. For the next year she cut down on outside commitments and only worked part time.

Neifert also advises parents to schedule time each day to have fun with their children. Give each child 10 minutes of time focused exclusively on him. Catch your child being good and praise him for it.

Neifert said one of the things she and her children, who now range in age from 16 to 23, enjoy most is a annual family camping trip.

"For 10 days we are away from everything," Neifert said. "But if we didn't schedule it, I know a year would slip by and we would not do it."

Todays parents are doing something right, Neifert said. "They are seeking information, asking questions, trying to be better parents and looking for self-improvement," Neifert said.

Parents can hear Neifert discuss ways to keep parenting fun from noon to 4 p.m. Feb. 29 at St. Mary's Health Center. Fee is $12.50 per person or $20 per couple.

Students win in math competition at SIUE

Three area students were the top individual winners in the recent MATHCOUNTS competition conducted at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

MATHCOUNTS locally is sponsored by the St. Clair Chapter of the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers and the SIUE School of Engineering.

The regional competition drew seventh- and eighth-grade contestants from 31 schools in an 11-county area of Southwestern Illinois. The top three teams and two of the top 10 individual winners will go to the state MATHCOUNTS competition at Bradley University in Peoria on March 14.

The top three area students are: Matt Williams of Edwardsville Junior High School, who won a $500 U.S. Savings Bond for first place overall;

Johanna Franklin, of Governor French Academy in Belleville, who won a $200 U.S. Savings Bond for second place overall; and Susan Eggers, of Marie Schaefer Junior High School in O'Fallon, who won a $200 U.S. Savings Bond for third place overall.

Fourth-ranked Chris Gray, of West Junior High School in Belleville, and Franklin have been invited to the state competition in Peoria.

MATHCOUNTS is a nationwide program designed to answer the problem of declining math skills among students at the pre-college level.

National sponsors of MATHCOUNTS are the National Society of Professional Engineers, CNA Insurance Companies, the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The top three teams overall — Marie Schaefer Junior High, Edwardsville Junior High and St. Mary's School in Brussels, respectively — were also invited to the state competition. Members of the three top teams are: Marie Schaefer Junior High — Susan Eggers, Joseph Kidd, Don Brown and James Wright;

Missionaries to be honored

Bishop Daniel L. Ryan is inviting Catholics of the Springfield Diocese to celebrate Mission and Membership Sunday, March 15, through membership in the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

Each year a day is designated to honor and seek financial support for the thousands of missionaries serving in the mission areas of the world.

Membership contributions supply the "daily bread" of the missionaries and help maintain hospitals, orphanages and leproisiums throughout the mission world.

Forty percent of all contributions is used for missionary work in the needy areas of the United States. The remainder is sent to the poorest areas of Asia, Africa, the Pacific Islands and the Middle East.

Individuals may contribute at their local parish or send donations to Father Kevin B. Sullivan, Director, Office for the Missions, 800 South Fifth St., P.O. Box 819, Springfield, Ill. 62705.

Catholic Schools week is celebrated at Holy Family School

"Discover Catholic Schools—1991" was the theme for Catholic Schools Week, Jan. 25 to 31.

Holy Family School began the week-long celebration with 5:30 p.m. Mass Saturday evening. The children's choir, grades 3 to 8, led the celebration in song. Eighth grader Mark Hewlet and his father, Tom Hewlet, read the different scripture readings.

Students Tracie Petrillo, Erin Ellis, Amy Pennell, Liza Santini, Melecia Dickerman, and Rosanna Gordon preceded the Eucharistic offering with a liturgical dance that was performed with elegance and grace.

At the Communion Meditation fifth and eighth grade students sang and signed the hymn "Jesus is Beautiful" in the church sanctuary.

Following the celebration of the Mass, many of the families walked over to the community center for a family pot luck. About 300 people enjoyed a delicious meal.

On Monday, many of the classes were treated to a video and treat. All classes received their treat and video sometime throughout the week. Monday night was the Parish School Associations monthly meeting followed by an open house and demonstration of the Accelerated Reader Enrichment Program.

The smell of turkey and trimmings filled the school on Tuesday and Thursday as the cafeteria ladies prepared for the grandparent luncheon. The students were able to have lunch with their grandparents, older friends or relatives, or their parents on one of these two days and then take their guests to classrooms and show them the different papers and projects they had been working on. On each of these days over 300 hot lunches were served.

The Granite City ice rink was the site of many Holy Family smiling faces. Students and parents alike faced up their skates and joined in the fun. The highlight of the after-school party was when Sister Angelene, principal, appeared on the ice with her skates.

Friday was named "Appreciation Day." The day began with 8:15 a.m. Mass in the cafeteria. Invited guests for the "Appreciation of Supportive Staff" Mass were all parents, grandparents, parishioners, and friends that have helped at the school in any way. Afterwards, guests were served coffee and doughnuts by the 7th and 8th grade student council.

"Teacher Appreciation" was celebrated with a banner, bouquet of balloons, and a monetary gift to each teacher from the P.S.A. "Student Appreciation," in addition to the video and treat, was topped off by "No Homework."

An "Appreciation Staff Luncheon" was held in the music room for the priests, principal, teachers, and staff, about 40 people in all. They were served a sit-down luncheon with the room decorated using the theme "Discover Catholic Schools."

The day ended with the annual "Bucatch vs. Prazma Volleyball Match" in the gym with the whole school present. Judy Bucatch, 8th grade teacher, and Diana Prazma, 7th grade teacher, randomly chose teams made up of all the 7th and 8th graders. Bucatch's team was the winner of the three-game match this year. The girls also handed the boys a defeat.

In school registration for the 1992-93 school year is now going on at Holy Family School. This registration is for all families that have children now attending Holy Family during the 1991-92 school year. Open registration will be held Wednesday, March 11. This is for any family that would be enrolling kindergartens and new student(s) in Holy Family for the 1992-93 school year. For more information, call the school at 877-5500.

- Highest average of 21 games or more as listed in the 1990-91 ABC-WIBC Yearbook. Those not listed will use this season's highest average of 21 games or more as of March 22, 1992. All others bowl scratch. If on March 22, 1992 the entrant has a current season's average of 21 games or more which is 10 pins or more higher than the previous season's average, the bowler must use his current average. NON-SANCTIONED LEAGUES AND YOUTH LEAGUE AVERAGES ARE NOT ACCEPTED. BOWLERS MUST BE ABLE TO VERIFY AVERAGES OR BE DISQUALIFIED.
- Bowler MUST submit for re-rating if in the past 12 months your accumulated average of 21 or more games of sanctioned or unsanctioned tournament play exceeds your highest league average by 10 or more pins or you exceed your highest league average on a series basis by 15 or more pins per game in five tournaments based on their high series in each tournament. Refer to ABC Rule 319e.
- Bowlers are responsible to verify the accuracy of their average. Failure to use the proper average or make a correction prior to completion of the first game of a series or within 48 hours after completion of a series, if the tournament director has given written consent to the bowler before the end of the first game of a series, score will be disqualified if submitted average is lower than actual average. Or prize winnings will be based on submitted average if it is higher. Decision of Tournament Director is final unless appealed, ABC-WIBC Rule 329. Bowlers must report winnings of $300 or more in the past year.

Premature termination of the tournament brought about by war, national emergency, or emergency causes relating thereto or therefore, form fire, natural disaster, or any other reason beyond the control of the Greater St. Louis BPA shall cause, to the extent required thereby, all advertised prizes, guaranteed or otherwise, to be prorated in accordance with the number of entrants who have bowled up to the time of such termination.
- This tournament is ABC-WIBC sanctioned. Non-members may enter by purchasing unattached membership (WIBC-$8.50, ABC-$10), or pay a participation fee (WIBC-$2, ABC-$1). Check Rule 2 for average requirements.
- BRC Lakeside Lanes, owners, managers, employees or their immediate families or Professional Bowlers Association Touring Pros #1 and #2 may not enter.
- Any bowler who appears to be under the influence of intoxicating liquors, or any bowler who willfully delays the normal progress of the game, or whose conduct on the lanes is considered objectionable, shall be removed immediately from the lanes and tournament. Tournament Director has the right to reassign lanes during the tournament because of equipment malfunctions, etc. All decisions of the Tournament Director are final.
- Participation in any tournament sponsored, conducted or held by or in behalf of BPA is open, upon the same terms and conditions to all bowlers who do, or have done, any league, tournament, advertised exhibition or any other type of bowling (a) in a BPA member establishment, (b) in a non-BPA member establishment, (c) whether such bowler is or is not member of any bowling proprietor association, or (d) whether such bowler is or is not a member of any bowler's membership organization.

MEMORIAL GOT YOUR MESSAGE.

When we outgrew our last Outpatient Surgery Center, we asked, and you told us what you wanted.....
We got your message.

■ Memorial responds to your desire for privacy and personalized care. Unlike many conventional facilities, Memorial's new Outpatient Surgery Center no longer groups patients in a large "shared" room for their care. Our patients stay in 28 private, attractive, and quiet rooms. Each has its own television and enough room for family members to stay before and after surgery. You can privately discuss your personal medical conditions with our nursing professionals and your physician.

■ Memorial responds to your desire for even more convenience. Our new center is larger and more convenient - with adjacent parking, a drive-up entrance, a separate family waiting area and prompt registration.

But, we kept what patients told us they liked:

- High quality outpatient surgery services in a friendly atmosphere from exceptional nursing professionals.
- The reassurance of surgery being conveniently performed as an outpatient, but with the immediate back-up of a full-service medical center.

When your physician recommends outpatient surgery, ask that it be performed in Memorial's new Outpatient Surgery Center - where services and facilities are designed with our patients in mind.

Murphy can't go wrong with St. Patty's Day mixes

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

Maybe Murphy inherited his Irish ancestry only from his father's side. If he had relied more on it, his luck would have been better. He wouldn't have expected everything to go wrong that could go wrong.

Instead of expecting rain when he left home without an umbrella, he would have smiled at the four leaf clovers in his wake. He would have anticipated finding enough pennies in his pocket of change to match the bill. He would have figured on coming out with the same amount of refund at the end of his tax form that Uncle Sam calculates.

He would have expected the jar of leftover soup rolling off the refrigerator shelf not to spill or land on his foot. He would have looked to have enough flour in the pantry to make bread or coffee cake, too.

Because he was naturally pessimistic though, it would be better for him to start his St. Patrick's Day with a few mixes to ensure a lucky celebration of the feast day. Murphy would look masterful serving Irish beef stew, loaded with hearty potatoes and other vegetables, in golden brown, edible bowls made from hot roll mix and potato flakes. Coffee cakes and muffins—baked in minipans in case leprechauns should join the party—are easy to make from quick bread mixes.

All Americans like Murphy who find themselves with at least a wee bit of Irish in them this St. Patrick's Day would be lucky to be seated at Murphy's table, which wouldn't be short any settings—in spite of what Murphy might predict.

WEE LITTLE IRISH MUFFINS

- 1 pkg. cranberry (15.6 oz.) or banana (14 oz.) quick bread mix
- 1/2 cup ground almonds
- 1 cup oil
- 1 tsp. almond extract
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup coconut
- 1/4 cup sliced almonds
- 2 tsp. raspberry jam
- 1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
- 2 to 3 tsp. water

Great bottoms of 36 miniature muffin cups or line with baking cups. In large bowl, combine quick bread mix, ground almonds, milk, oil, almond extract and egg. Stir 50 to 75 strokes by hand until mix is moistened. Fill muffin cups about three-fourths full. Top 12 muffins evenly with coconut. Top second 12 evenly with sliced almonds. Spoon raspberry jam evenly on remaining 12 muffins.

Bake at 375° for 15 to 20 minutes until light golden brown. Cool 2 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool.

In small bowl, combine 1/2 cup confectioner's sugar with water until desired drizzling consistency. Drizzle over muffins with jam. If desired, sprinkle almond-topped muffins with confectioner's sugar.

Makes 36 mini-muffins.
Tip: A 12-cup regular-sized muffin pan can be used. Follow directions except divide batter evenly between 12 cups. Top muffins as directed using each topping for 4 muffins. Bake at 375° for 25 to 30 minutes.

EMERALD ISLE STEW

- 1 tbsp. oil
- 1 lb. round steak, cut in 1 inch cubes
- 5 to 8 large carrots, chopped
- 2 stalks celery, chopped
- 3 to 4 large potatoes, peeled, cubed
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) beef broth
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) golden mushroom soup
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 tsp. leaf thyme
- Pepper to taste

In Dutch oven over medium-high heat, heat oil until hot. Add beef cubes. Cook and stir until browned on all sides. Stir in carrots, celery, potatoes, onion, broth, soup, water, thyme and pepper. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer, partially covered, 1 to 1 1/2 hours until meat and vegetables are tender.

Makes six (1 1/2-cup) servings.

IRISH 'TATER' BREAD BOWLS

- 1 pkg. (16 oz.) hot roll mix
- 1 cup instant mashed potato flakes
- 1 tbsp. dried chives
- 1 tsp. dried minced onion
- 1 1/2 cups hot water (120° to 130°)
- 2 tbsp. margarine or butter, softened
- 1 egg

On large cookie sheet, invert six 10-ounce custard cups. Generously grease outside of cups.

In large bowl, combine flour mixture, potato flakes, chives and onion with yeast from foil packet. Stir in water and margarine until dough pulls away from side of bowl. Turn out onto floured surface. With greased or floured hands, shape dough into ball. Knead 5 minutes until smooth. Cover with large bowl. Let rest 5 minutes.

Divide dough in 6 equal pieces. Shape each piece of dough over outside of greased custard cup. Cover loosely with plastic wrap and cloth towel. Let rise in warm place (80° to 85°) for 30 minutes.

Uncover dough. Bake 20 to 30 minutes at 375° until golden brown. Let cool 5 minutes. Remove bread bowls from custard cups. Divide stew evenly between bowls.

Makes 6 bowls.
Note: If custard cups are not available, dough can be made into rolls. Follow directions above, except divide dough into 15 rolls. Place in greased 13-by-9-inch pan. Let rise. Bake at 375° for 15 to 20 minutes.

A few ingenious steps work their magic to transform yellow cake mix into Royal Banana Fruit Shortcake. Let family and friends enjoy its looks before savoring its flavor.

Fresh fruit tops banana cake in shortcake for all seasons

Shortcake has its season. Or does it? Actually, shortcake is a premium dessert any time of the year. Simply transform the cake to fit the fruit, or plan it the other way around.

In Royal Banana Fruit Shortcake, the delicate flavor of bananas comes from the fruit that looks like it knows no season in North American markets.

First comes a ready-to-mix cake that has extra-ripe, freckled bananas in it as part of its liquid. Then the topping takes over. Not only are there bananas in the island-flavored overlay, but kiwifruit, strawberries, grapes or oranges turn the dessert into a colorful, delicious medley. Drizzle a sweet glaze of chocolate on top for an irresistible dessert or snack.

Royal banana fruit shortcake

- 1 pkg. (1 layer) yellow cake mix (see note)
- 1 extra-ripe, medium banana
- 1/4 cup sliced almonds
- 1/4 cup pineapple-orange guava juice
- 1 firm medium banana, sliced
- 2 cups assorted sliced fresh fruit, such as strawberries, kiwifruit, oranges
- 1/4 cup semisweet chocolate chips
- 1/2 tsp. margarine

Note: Two-layer cake mix also can be used. Reserve second layer for other use. To prepare both layers the same way, 2 extra-ripe bananas and 1/2 cup sliced almonds should be used.

Prepare cake according to package directions, using extra-ripe banana pureed in blender as part of liquid measured with water.

Spread batter in greased 9-inch round cake pan. Sprinkle top with almonds. Bake and cool as directed.

Pour 3 tablespoons fruit juice onto large cake plate. Place cake on top to absorb liquid. Pour another 3 tablespoons juice over top.

Combine banana with other fresh fruit. Pour all but 1 tablespoon remaining juice over fruit. Arrange fruit with juice over cake.

Combine chocolate chips, 1 tablespoon fruit juice and margarine in small microwave-safe container. Microwave 10 to 30 seconds until soft. Stir until smooth. Drizzle over fruit and cake. Chill 30 minutes.

Makes 8 servings; 208 calories, 4 g protein, 7 g fat, 35 g carbohydrate, 60 mg sodium and 81 mg cholesterol each.

Recipes

Louisiana pepper chicken

- 3 whole boned, skinned chicken breasts, split in half
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. or less cayenne pepper
- Flour for dredging
- 6 tbsp. oil
- 2 shallots, finely chopped
- 1 green bell pepper, washed, cored, cut in thin strips
- 1 red bell pepper, washed, cored, cut in thin strips
- 1 tsp. dried or 1 1/2 tsp. chopped fresh basil
- 1/2 tsp. dried or 1 1/2 tsp. chopped fresh leaf thyme
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1 1/2 cups lemon juice
- 3 tbsp. chopped fresh parsley

Rinse chicken with cool water. Pat dry with paper towels. Mix together salt and cayenne pepper. Rub into chicken. Dredge in flour to coat. Shake off excess flour. Heat oil over high to medium-high heat in large, heavy skillet. Brown chicken on both sides 8 to 12 minutes until cooked through. Arrange on serving plate. Keep warm.

In hot skillet, saute shallot and pepper while stirring 2 to 3 minutes. Arrange pepper mixture on top of chicken. Add basil, thyme, chicken broth and lemon juice to skillet. Cook, uncovered, over high heat until mixture is reduced to 1/2 cup. Spoon mixture over top of chicken breasts.

Spicy souper chicken

- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) cream of chicken soup
- 1 cup milk
- 3 tbsp. chopped fresh parsley
- 3 tsp. paprika
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1 cup fresh whole wheat bread crumbs (2 slices bread)
- 1/2 tsp. garlic powder
- 1/2 tsp. seasoned salt
- 2 tsp. cinnamon
- Pinch pepper
- 3 lb. chicken, cut up
- About 2 1/2 cups butter-flavored shortening
- 3 tbsp. butter or margarine

In 1 1/2-quart saucepan, combine soup and milk. Pour half soup mixture into shallow dish or pie plate. Add 1 tablespoon parsley and 1 teaspoon paprika to remaining soup mixture. In second shallow dish or pie plate, combine remaining parsley, paprika, flour, bread crumbs, garlic powder, seasoned salt, cinnamon and pepper. Coat chicken with flour mixture, dip in soup mixture and again in flour mixture. In electric skillet at 350° or 10-inch skillet over medium heat, in hot shortening fry chicken 25 to 30 minutes until dark golden brown. Drain. Add butter to soup mixture in saucepan. Over medium heat and stirring occasionally, cook sauce until heated.

Planning is the key to good shopping

Wise Ways

Fast nutrition on a budget

By Linda Foster Benedict
Consumer/Health Information
Univ. of Missouri-Columbia
(Special to the Journal)

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Supermarket savvy. That is the trait that can separate you from the shopper who spends too much on food. All you need are three tools — the grocery store ads, a menu plan and a shopping list.

The ads tell you the specials for the week. Plan your menus around those. Then make out a list. Do this in the order of the store's layout. That saves time. Time is a key ingredient. Research shows that every minute in the grocery store costs you an average of $1.33, so go in and get your job done as efficiently as possible.

The most efficient shopper is the lone woman. Research shows men tend to do more buying on impulse than women. When the kids are along, a parent is more likely to cave in to their cravings and veer from that list.

The hard part in grocery shopping is sticking to a list. This becomes a game of wits with the food marketing people. Food packages have been created and the store layout has been designed to attract you and, in the end, spend money on that food.

Take the produce aisle, for instance. It usually is first. Lush fruits and vegetables have been lit strategically and sprayed to show off lush tropical colors and sensual textures.

The family needs to eat something from this aisle every day. Buying only what you can use means there will be no waste. For example, one week cauliflower cost only 29 cents a head at my local market. What a bargain! I used it to add texture to tossed salads, which usually is an extravagance. I also added it to my stir-fry entree that week.

When selecting something green and leafy, keep in mind just about any choice is more nutritious than iceberg lettuce. Compare prices to make sure you are getting the most vitamins and minerals for your buck.

Raw spinach is one of the best buys you ever will find. It is not only a good source of vitamins A and C, but 1 cup contains 15 milligrams iron, to make it easier for the body to absorb this iron, serve the spinach with sliced tomatoes, oranges or another source of vitamin C, says Melinda Hemmeln, extension nutritionist at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

"The iron is in a form in the spinach that's more difficult for the body to absorb," Hemmeln says. "That's why tomato slices can enrich a spinach salad."

On to the processed foods. There are about 50,000 of these in a typical grocery store. Naturally, the most expensive are at eye level within arm's reach, making it unnecessary to stoop for them. Pre-sweetened cereals, for example, are in full view of lots in cart seats.

Search out store brands among the canned and boxed fare. These can be anywhere from 10 to 70 percent cheaper than nationally known and advertised brands, Hemmeln says.

Watch out for plays, such as end-of-aisle displays. Here is a tossed salad that can make spinach more attractive to the family. Make an easy French dressing to go with it. My recipe saves about one-third the cost of store-bought dressing — 31 cents for ¾ cup as opposed to 93 cents.

The salad makes 6 generous servings. Each serving provides nearly one-third the vitamins A and C that children need in one day and 1 milligram iron. Water chestnuts and peanuts provide crunch while the oranges and raisins tingle the tongue with tang.

Nutritious tossed salad

- 1 head Boston bibb lettuce
- 1 cup fresh spinach
- 1 orange, sliced in bite-size pieces
- 1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts
- ½ cup unsalted, dry roasted peanuts
- ½ cup raisins

1. Rinse lettuce. Twist core to remove. Shred leaves by hand into bite-size pieces. Shredding by hand makes the salad look and taste fresher than using a knife.
2. Rinse and shred spinach into bite-size pieces.

3. My technique for the orange is to slice it crosswise in about ½-inch slices. Cut away the peeling from each slice and poke out the core, then slice in bite-size pieces.
4. Drain the water chestnuts.

5. Combine lettuce, spinach, orange and water chestnuts. Add chestnuts and raisins. Toss with Homemade French Dressing before serving.

Makes 6 generous servings.

- Homemade French Dressing
- ½ cup corn oil
  - 2 tbsp. vinegar
  - 2 tbsp. lemon juice
  - 1 tsp. sugar
  - ½ tsp. salt
  - ½ tsp. dry mustard
  - ½ tsp. paprika

Shaker method: Put oil, vinegar, lemon juice, sugar, salt, dry mustard and paprika in jar. Cover and shake well before using.

Blender method: In blender, blend oil, vinegar, lemon juice, sugar, salt, dry mustard and paprika before using.

Makes ¾ cup.

Garden club hears reports

Ten members present at the February meeting of the Garden Study Club heard reports on the receipt of thank-you letters and upcoming meetings, including the March 19th Annual Card 1992 board meeting in Collinsville.

Meeting at Shoney's Restaurant on Nameoki Road, Mary Stoum called the meeting to order and the club collect and the Pledge of Allegiance were recited in unison.

Roll call was taken by Helen Meyer and answered to "Name one chore to summarize your garden."

Under communications, "thank you" letters were received from the Salvation Army, Tri-City United Way for donations, Oath Inc., Phoenix Crisis Center for Pointsettias given at Christmas time, and Nancy Morgan for a get well card sent to her in November.

A letter was received from District V Garden Clubs of Illinois Inc., telling of the Annual Card 1992 board meeting on Thursday March 19th, at 10 a.m. at Shoney's Restaurant on Commerce Drive near Interstate 70 and Ill. 157 in Collinsville.

OH MY ACHING CORNS!

A phrase so commonly used by those suffering needlessly from painful corns. Although trimming them affords temporary relief, within 1-2 months regrowth of the corn occurs along with the pain and discomfort. The recurrence is due to the underlying calcium deposit causing excessive pressure where the skin responds by building up that hard corn tissue. In almost all instances the corn can be permanently removed by an in-office procedure requiring little or no time off of work. There is no need to suffer any longer - consult the physicians and surgeons at THE FOOT HEALTH CENTERS.

Respiratory therapy patients helped here

Waking up in the middle of the night, unable to breathe correctly without the aid of medical equipment, brought a realization to St. Elizabeth Medical Center Auxiliary member Helen Bergfield.

"What if I needed this machine but could not afford it in my home?" she thought. "Maybe we can get a program started at the medical center to help people who cannot afford it."

So she brought her idea before the Granite City Township Senior Citizen Advisory Committee. Committee members include her, Maris Hogan, vice president of nursing, Helene Bischoff, president of SEMC's Auxiliary, and Sister Mary Thomas, SEMC chairman of the board.

"The committee provides no services, but helps meet needs in other ways," Bergfield said. "There is such a need for this service to people in the community and it is terrible if they cannot have it. The United Way is always willing to listen, so we went to them with our idea."

As a result, the Tri-Cities Area United Way granted $1,500 to the Auxiliary to get nebulizers, machines which make it possible for patients to aerosolize medication at home, and the necessary medication for patients who cannot afford to buy it.

"The nebulizers will be purchased from Provide, which donated three machines to help us get started," Bergfield said.

"The SEMC Pharmacy Department will furnish the prescribed drugs at cost and Pulmonary Services will instruct patients on using and caring for the equipment."

The request for the nebulizer and medication must come from the patient's physician. The patient will then take the prescriptions to Pulmonary Rehab.

The Auxiliary will be responsible for obtaining the machines and prescriptions, but will be reimbursed by United Way.

"When the physician prescribes the medications and machine, he will indicate how long the patient will probably need it. We will keep track of each machine and, when it is no longer needed, we will make sure it is returned for someone else to use," Bergfield said.

Pan Am's death probably won't be the last

By Alfred Borcover
Knight-Ridder News Service

The airline industry is sick and there's no sure cure on the horizon. Three U.S. airlines have died so far this year. Two of them — Eastern and Pan American World Airways, the most recent to fail, were venerable carriers with passenger pioneering histories. The other, Midway, was a child of deregulation. Unfortunately, several more airlines are ailing from a common malady: lack of cash.

The demise of Eastern, Midway and Pan Am has cost thousands of airline employees their jobs and consumers millions of dollars, not to mention anguish to both groups.

The ailing airlines are Continental and America West, both under Chapter 11 federal bankruptcy protection from their creditors. Trans World Airlines is expected to file for Chapter 11 protection early next year.

If consumers aren't concerned by all of this, they certainly should be. The outlook for travelers is for higher air fares, not prolonged bargains.

Yes, there will be fleeting fare wars, but in light of the current recession, consumers remain reluctant to travel. Air travel declined this year for the first time since 1981. Airlines aren't making money from bargain fares. And even United, a strong carrier, is expected to have record losses this year.

The problem is that airlines can fill airplanes at low rates, but it doesn't solve their problem," said Phil Davidoff, president and chief operating officer of the American Society of Travel Agents.

"Somehow, air fares have to increase to make it (air transportation) viable. The airlines only have two choices: increase income or cut expenses. The airlines are already at the bottom on cost-cutting."

From his point of view as a travel agent, Davidoff asserted consumers will see somewhat higher fares. He also hopes consumers eventually will be in a better economic position to pay more for air transportation. "The higher fares have to evolve," he said. "Right now the airlines are protecting market share at the expense of profitability."

On the matter of failed airlines, Davidoff offered this advice to consumers: Use credit cards to buy airline tickets. Although not discouraging clients from flying on airlines that are under bankruptcy protection, Davidoff does ask them to sign a form indicating that they realize the carrier is under federal bankruptcy protection.

What ASTA wants is more protection for the consumer.

While ASTA and the entire travel agency community mourn the loss of Pan Am, we can't ignore the fact that this is the second carrier within one month that has had to shut down," said Susan Tatzman Kaplan, a travel agent and attorney who chairs ASTA's governmental-affairs committee. "Travelers need protection and peace of mind when they purchase tickets. I hope members of Congress are paying attention."

Consumers are out $5.4 million in unfunded tickets on carriers that have gone bankrupt since airline deregulation in 1978, Kaplan said.

Kaplan urged that Congress pass the Airline Bankruptcy Consumer Protection Plan of 1991. The House bill (H. 96) was introduced by Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y.

A gondola offers splendid views of the Green Mountains at Killington, Vt.

Journal tour to offer spectacular, colorful view

On the 11th day of the Journals Grand New England Tours next fall, tour members come back to the U.S. from Canada to enjoy the pastoral beauty of the Green Mountains of Vermont.

The route heads south along country roads to the peaceful village of Stowe for lunch and then to Mount Mansfield, "the ski capital of the east," and the highest peak in Vermont. A gondola whisks our group to the summit for a scenic panorama of fall colors.

Later that afternoon, tour members will continue south through the Vermont countryside to Killington. Evening accommodations are at the Cortina Inn in Killington. One of the area's most gracious resorts, the Cortina Inn is typical of the fine hotels and inns reserved for Journal travelers.

The Journals Grand Tours are operated by Tauck Tours and Tenholder Travel — two fine, old family owned travel companies that have provided exceptional vacations to generations of travelers. Nearly every necessary expense has been included in the cost.

Participation on the New England tours is limited to two small groups, traveling separate dates to alleviate crowding and confusion which can occur with large tour groups.

The Journal will sponsor Grand Tours to Hawaii and Alaska in 1993. Although brochures on these tours will not be available until late summer, fully refundable "Early Bird" reservations are being accepted now. For information and reservations on any of the Journals Grand Tours contact the Tour Coordinator at Tenholder Travel at 800-333-0910 in St. Louis.

38 Special thrives after personnel change

By Alan Sculley
Correspondent

When singer/guitarist Don Barnes, left 38 Special in 1988, even the remaining members wondered if it meant the end of the group, according to guitarist Danny Chauncey.

Little wonder. Over the course of four hit albums during the 1980s, Barnes had written and sung an extended string of chart-topping singles for the group, including "Hold On Loosely," "Back Where You Belong" and "Caught Up In You."

"I guess the scary thing for the original members was that, of course, the band wasn't going to sound the same, and that there wouldn't be the success to go along with it," said Chauncey, who along with keyboardist/vocalist Max Carl, replaced Barnes and drummer Steve Brookins three years ago.

"As a matter of fact, the first things they had Max and I play when we all got together... for the first time were the old songs," Chauncey said. "The most important thing was if we went out on tour that we could do the songs."

Chauncey previously had been in the bands Taxi and Billy Satellite. Carl came from the popular Los Angeles R&B group Jack Mack and the Heart Attack.

Both musicians passed the initial test with 38 Special. But to Chauncey, an even bigger issue was at stake.

"I think the important thing that we all had to realize and get comfortable with was when you add two new players and songwriters that things are going to be different," Chauncey said. "If we are to be true to who we all are as a band entity, we're going to have our own band sound, just as 38 Special had its own sound before Don Barnes was in the group."

Three years and two albums later, the new 38 Special, which also includes original members Donnie Van Zant on vocals, Jeff Carlisi on guitar and Larry Junstrom on bass, has proved to be a viable group.

The band's 1989 release, "Rock and Roll Strategy," gave the group a hit on three different radio formats with the ballad "Second Chance." The song, which featured Carl on vocals and Chauncey on lead guitar, was an important milestone for the band in another respect as well.

"For the two new guys to come in and have a hit in something that had success—I think it was the highest charting single they ever had—it was like a real sigh of relief to know that our contribution will help not only establish a new sound, but a sound we can have some success with," Chauncey said.

"Bone Against Steel," the follow-up album released in summer, has landed the band additional success, with the hard-rocking song "The Sound Of

Your Voice," which topped the album-oriented radio charts earlier in the year.

But even had the new lineup not achieved immediate success, 38 Special would have no reason to regret the personnel switch, Chauncey said. By 1988, the time for a change had clearly arrived.

The balance of power, in fact, had shifted so much toward Barnes, that Van Zant—who sang the bulk of the group's material when 38 Special first began recording in 1977—only handled vocals on two songs for "Strength In Numbers," the final album recorded by the original lineup.

ST. LOUIS CELEBS

Joneal Joplin
Actor

Harry Hamm

Joplin was born Feb. 3, 1939, in Ponca City, Okla., to Estelle and Iley Joplin. He began his acting career at age 25 by appearing in various summer stock and off-Broadway productions. Joplin credits director Davey Martin Jones with changing his life and career for the better when, in 1972, Jones offered Joplin a position as a resident member of the acting company of the Repertory Theater of St. Louis. Joplin's first show for the Rep was "Of Mice and Men" that year. Joplin moved his family to Webster Groves in 1972 and they have remained there ever since.

Even though the Rep dropped the resident company concept in 1980, Joplin has remained as one of the few regular cast members of the theater. Joplin has appeared in shows each season at the Rep since his arrival.

In addition to numerous credits at the Muni and the Rep, Joplin has impressive credits in many national touring companies of hit Broadway musicals. He played six different roles in the show for nine months. In 1978, Joplin toured with the revival of Meridith Wilson's "Music Man" starring Tony Randall. Joplin just completed a seven-month tour with the national company of the Broadway show "Meet Me in St. Louis" that starred Debby Boone.

In addition to his stage work, Joplin has done several made-for-television movies for NBC. They include "Coach of the Year" with Robert Conrad and "She Stayed Alive" starring Marc Winningham.

Joplin also maintains a heavy schedule doing voice-overs on regional and national commercials. He is also a board member of the local chapter of the American Federation of Radio and Television Artists.

Joplin's wife, Janie, is a music teacher at Holy Redeemer School in Webster Groves. The Joplins have two children, daughter Jennifer, 19, and son Jared, 14. Both are studying acting and plan to follow in their father's footsteps.

Being A Professional Actor Based In St. Louis is: "The best of both worlds. This is a great place to raise a family. For me, it couldn't be better. I have enough theater work to keep my soul alive. I won't get rich. But financially, no one suffers in my family. My work in commercials subsidizes our income. My family is very supportive."

My Kids Think Having An Actor For A Dad is: "Unusual, but they're used to it. I think, actually, that they're very proud of what I do. They're always taking their friends to see me in plays, or they're always telling them to watch me on television when one of my movies is coming on."

My Goal As An Actor is: "To work consistently and do a lot of roles. I've never cared about being a star or making a bunch of money." The Hardest Things About Acting For A Living Are: "The night hours and, sometimes, the uneven financial picture. I can remember how my daughter cried one night when I had to go to the Rep for a show. She didn't want me to leave. I explained to her that sometimes daddy wouldn't be home when he should be, and sometimes, I wouldn't have the money to get her everything she wanted. But I also told her she'd never have a father who hated what he did for a living, or said, 'Damn, I have to go to work.'"

When singer/songwriter Sam Phillips recorded "Cruel Intentions," her latest album, she was in Ocean Way, the Los Angeles studio where some of rock's most legendary music was created.

"It's interesting. I think it had more No. 1 records recorded in that room than in any other room in the world," Phillips said. "It's a tiny studio, too. It's funny, it's not even their big (main) studio. It's more of an overdub room now."

Unfortunately, the hit-making magic of albums like The Beach Boys' "Pet Sounds" didn't rub off on "Cruel Intentions." Released the same week as label-mate Paula Abdul's "Spellbound," Phillips' album easily surpassed the sales of her acclaimed 1988 release, "The Indescribable Wow." But it hasn't produced the Top 40 singles that would introduce her to a mass audience.

"I think the timing may have been a little off on this record for more sales," Phillips said, noting that her label, Virgin, had to concentrate a lot of effort on Abdul's album at the time "Cruel Intentions" was released.

Sales, however, are not the top priority for Phillips, who said she has learned to make music that satisfies herself first before worrying about whether the public will embrace it.

"In my little brush with gospel music, I had the experience of having something be relatively successful and being really unhappy with it," Phillips said. "And I think that's probably a lot worse than being really happy with something and not having it sell."

This brush with Christian music is a subject Phillips isn't eager to relish. Yet her transition from Christian-marketed music into mainstream pop became a pivotal event in both her musical and personal life. It was at this point that she met T Bone Burnett, the musician who would become her producer and later her husband.

Prior to meeting Burnett, she had made a pair of albums for a Christian music label under her real name of Leslie Phillips. By this time, Phillips, feeling constrained by the narrow range of spiritual issues that were acceptable within Christian music circles, was already planning to move into the broader arena of mainstream pop.

"I thought this would be a great place to write songs about spiritual issues," Phillips said of the Christian music scene. "And it ended up being connected to the right wing and the Bible Belt and the born-again movement. The whole thing was headed that way and I quit because I really didn't agree with a lot of that stuff. It was hypocritical and shallow. "And so in the process, at the record company there was one pretty good guy who said, 'Well if you're going to quit, why don't you at least make one record saying what you feel about things?' And T Bone Burnett, I just worked with him on a project, and I think he might be a really good person for you and you should meet him." Phillips said.

Phillips said she knew she was clicking professionally with Burnett when they first discussed her music. "I had (many) bad producers that I — sort of being young and learning about these things — let myself be pushed around by," she said. "And T Bone was the first one that would just say, 'Well, what do you think? What do you want to do?' And it really gave me a lot of freedom to do what I wanted to do, as well as helping to cast the right musicians, and to be a great sounding board on songwriting and arrangements, and performance as well."

The first album they made, "The Turning," served as a bridge into mainstream pop. After that record, Phillips signed to Virgin Records and began recording under her longtime nickname of Sam, debuting with "The Indescribable Wow," a pure pop album that made many critics' year-end Top 10 lists for 1988.

Phillips and Burnett were married two years ago, but perhaps surprisingly, this hasn't altered their working relationship, Phillips said.

"I guess it was just part of the relationship, really, just a continuation of what we started — getting married and all that sort of stuff — because we loved a lot of the same things," she said. "And it's funny, we rarely have disagreements about the arrangements or the musicians or the way to approach things," she said. "We're really on the same page in terms of production. So I don't know, I guess we're just very, we work well together in that sense, and our personalities ... so far, are pretty compatible as well."
